

“Drugs have destroyed many lives,
but wrong government policies have destroyed many more.”

— KOFI ANNAN, Global Leader, statesman, 2018

“Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny.”

Leader of the American Civil Rights Movement, 1963

Cannabis policy is undergoing a profound global transformation—one that cannot be managed with outdated or uneven governance frameworks.

Reclaiming the Green Gold is a comprehensive handbook that links health, justice, inclusion, economic development, and environmental stewardship in one coherent, evidence-based framework.

Addressing the full cannabis ecosystem—from cultivation and processing to healthcare access and global trade—this book equips policymakers, regulators, investors, and civil society leaders with practical tools to design fair laws, responsible governance, and sustainable national and regional strategies. Rooted in real-world insights and international best practice, it offers a balanced, future-ready approach that places people, planet, and sustainability at the core of the cannabis economy—so its benefits are shared widely and its risks are effectively managed for generations.

At the crossroads of health, justice, and sustainable development, this handbook provides the knowledge and direction needed to turn cannabis reform into enduring value for people, economies, and the planet.

This is not a book about whether to reform.
It is a book about how to reform well.
